Date: September 15, 2023 Meeting Date: October 5, 2023

Subject: Manager's Report

RECOMMENDATION

That the Indigenous Relations Committee receive for information the report dated September 15, 2023, titled "Manager's Report."

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

This report includes a chronological summary of events and activities of interest to the Indigenous Relations Committee since the date of the previous Committee meeting held on June 8, 2023, and includes: an update of the Indigenous Relations work plan; information about the release of the federal government's new United Nations Declaration Act (UNDA) Action Plan; the release of the Government of British Columbia's first annual report on its Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples Act (DRIPA) Action Plan; and the federal government cabinet shuffle and new minister of Crown-Indigenous Relations.

Indigenous Relations Committee's 2023 Work Plan

The attachment to this report sets out the Committee's Work Plan for 2023. The status of work program elements is indicated as pending, in progress, or complete. The listing is updated as needed to include items requested by the Committee, new issues that arise, and changes to the schedule.

The Federal Government's United Nations Declaration Act (UNDA) Action Plan Released

On June 21, 2023, the federal government released its final version of the Action Plan for implementing the United Nations Declaration Act \(UNDA\). UNDA received Royal Assent two years ago on June 21, 2021. A draft of the Action Plan was released in March 2023.

The federal Action Plan consists of 181 measures led by 28 federal departments and agencies. Of those measures, 111 are considered "shared priorities" between the First Nations, Métis and Inuit. However, the Action Plan also takes a Distinctions-Based Approach, outlining unique priorities and actions specific to each group: First Nations, Métis and Inuit Peoples, as well as Modern Treaty Partners.

Included among the shared priorities are: the establishment of an independent Indigenous rights mechanism(s); the co-development of an Indigenous climate leadership agenda; and the co-development of a distinctions-based economic reconciliation framework.

Measures outlined in the Action Plan still have to be prioritized. In addition, the Action Plan does not include processes, timeframes or costs associated with the implementation of the federal government's commitments to bring over 700 laws in Canada, as well as policies and regulations, in line with UNDA.

Much like British Columbia's Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples Act (DRIPA) Action Plan, the federal Action Plan has a five-year timeframe and requires annual progress reports which are to be developed in cooperation and consultation with Indigenous peoples.

Although an initial review of the Action Plan indicates that it does not directly address matters of local government, a more fulsome report and analysis of developments will be brought forward to the Indigenous Relations Committee in early 2024.

Government of British Columbia's 2022-2023 Declaration Act Annual Report Released

On June 28, 2023, the Province released its 2022-2023 Declaration Act Annual Report. DRIPA was released by the provincial government on March 30, 2022. Section 5 of DRIPA requires an Annual Report on progress made towards the implementation of the Declaration Act and alignment of provincial laws with the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples and, all to be done in consultation and cooperation with Indigenous peoples. The 2022-2023 Declaration Act Annual Report is the first such report, the review of which was taken between April 1, 2022 and March 31, 2023.

The report reveals that 32 of the 89 provincial Action Plan items are either completed or underway, including topics such as: developing a new distinctions-based fiscal relationship and framework that supports the operation of Indigenous governments; modernized emergency management legislation; and issuing guidelines on civil litigation which involves the rights of Indigenous peoples.

Two Action Plan items of particular interest to Metro Vancouver – Action 1.11, relating to advancing First Nations' participation on regional district boards, and Action 4.27, relating to the naming/renaming of municipalities and regional districts to foster reconciliation in local processes – are listed as "Action not started."

Metro Vancouver staff will continue to monitor progress on the DRIPA Action Plan and report out to the Indigenous Relations Committee.

Federal Government Cabinet Shuffle and New Minister of Crown-Indigenous Relations

On July 26, 2023, Gary Anandasangaree, a Member of Parliament for the Toronto riding of Scarborough-Rouge Park since 2015, was sworn in as Minister of Crown-Indigenous Relations – a position previously held by Marc Miller, who is now the Minister of Immigration, Refugees and Citizenship.

Minister Anandasangaree had previously served as the parliamentary secretary to the Crown-Indigenous Minister, as well as to the respective Ministers of both Justice and Heritage. He holds degrees from Carleton University in Ottawa and Osgoode Hall Law School in Toronto. He managed a law firm in Scarborough, Ontario that focuses on business, real estate, and international human rights law.

Minister Anandasangaree was born in Sri Lanka and arrived in Canada with his mother in 1983. He is on the board of Lawyers' Rights Watch Canada, and has also been involved with Tamil community organizations.

The federal government cabinet shuffle did not impact the current Ministers of Indigenous Services (Patty Hajdu) and Northern Affairs (Dan Vandal).
